Kumar Pereira

Born in Sri Lanka, Kumar studied typographic design at the London College of Printing. After working in London he lived in Hong Kong for 18 years, working with studios and agencies, and teaching graphic design at the Hong Kong Polytechnic. He left Hong Kong for Australia in 1988 and lives and works in Sydney with his wife Sally and their sons Robert and James.

Kumar Pereira grew up in Colombo in a family who loved travel and entertaining and owes a lot to his mother who was making her own pasta in Colombo in the '60's. He inherited her creativity and love of food and continues her passion. He has always had an interest in food and has featured on ABC radio "Gifted Gourmet" and has had recipes included in publications.

Past Journeys

The two weeks I spent travelling in beautiful Sri Lanka with Kumar and Sally Pereira were sensational. Literally. Each day was packed with spectacle, music, color, taste and beauty. There were once-in-a-lifetime experiences – the chance to observe wild elephant herds at close range, witnessing the Perahera pageant and visiting stunningly beautiful temples at Dambulla, Buduruwagala and Kandy, as well as the Sigiriya rock fortress. The food was a daily delight: fresh and vibrant but also subtle flavors. Another highlight among many was visiting spice gardens and local markets. Sri Lanka is becoming more popular for international tourists but it is still easy to step off the beaten track and encounter a fascinating culture with a long history. Kumar and Sally were fabulous hosts – helpful and fun, while also adding valuable personal insights and perspectives.

P. H, Australia, 2017

Our trip in 2016 is up there as one of the best ever travel experiences. Your clever cooking demonstrations and the unique dining experiences that accompanied them were the icing on the cake, to the fantastic Kandy Esala Perahera

Your choice of Jetwing hotels is a master stroke, particularly those designed by Geoffrey Bawa; each demonstrated that good design is ageless. For me the visit to the Lunuganga, Bawa's country estate was the architectural highlight of your Sri Lanka tour.

D. & R. L Sydney, Australia, 2016

Our holiday was in every sense an aesthetic and culinary feast - from the stunning choice of hotels and the carefully chosen itinerary to Chef Kumar's fabulous demonstrations. This is such a beautiful country, and we felt we had the perfect balance of relaxation and culture; idyllic coastal resorts combined with trips inland to visit shrines, temples and UNESCO sites, finishing with a shopping fest in Colombo. Kumar was the perfect host and guide; charming, fun, knowledgeable, unassuming and so considerate of our every comfort. A particular highlight was his demonstration of how to barbeque fish wrapped in huge banana leaf. Sadly not something we can replicate in the UK!

K. & J. H, London, 2015

'It was certainly happy times being on tour with Kumar and Sally. Kumar generously gave his insights, shared his family stories and opened our eyes and gave us experiences we may have otherwise missed. In addition to his wonderful guidance and hospitality he treated us to some of the most sumptuous food. Certainly happy fun filled times and wonderful memories'

T.S & J. M. Sydney, 2016

Kumar's tour was informative, entertaining and above all, a great introduction to Sri Lanka as we had not been there before. Market visits, shopping trips and visits to cultural sites were all terrific but the most memorable events were Kumar's cooking demonstrations. That is except for the Perahera in Kandy which was truly the most spectacular event - a once in a lifetime experience - and made all the more fun because of the small tour group and fabulous vantage point. We have not been on an organized tour before but we had enormous fun, ate and slept well, saw all the sights, and survived those long drives on the bus with ease. Thoroughly recommend!

F & T R, Australia, 2017

A feast for the senses, not just the stomach. A fascinating immersion into a small country with a big history. Fine hotels, fine food, spectacular scenery and some of the most bizarre road craft in the world..

R. & A. W- NSW Australia, 2016

A unique and wonderful trip full of unexpected pleasures- gourmet delights, Sri Lankan historical sites, tea plantations, shopping opportunities and carefully selected high standard accommodation of Bawa designed/inspired resorts, hotels with colonial ambience as well as restful villas in a nature reserve to recharge!

Visits to historical sites were well paced as are chef Kumar's cooking demonstrations and introduction to the glorious range of food that is Sri Lanka's.

Underpinning all this is Kumar's passion for sharing his knowledge and love of the history culture and food of this country. We were truly fortunate to have Kumar plan and take us through it all.

Sri Lankan

Food & Spices

Sri Lanka is a small island but the diverse array of food makes eating truly a pleasure. Rice and curry is the staple diet of most Sri Lankans but the two words hardly pay homage to the immense array of dishes that fall under this heading. A plateful of rice is accompanied by either spicy or non-spicy vegetable, meat or fish curries. Mallung (shredded green vegetable leaves), a spicy pol sambol (a coconut sambol) papadams (crispy fried wafers) and chutney are some of the additional dishes found in a traditional Sri Lankan meal. Aside from rice and curry Sri Lankan cuisine has plenty of fascinating dishes such as hoppers, string hoppers, pittu, kottu rotti and rotti. Hoppers (or appa) are a hot favourite. Crispy on the outside with a soft and spongy center, it is made from coconut milk, rice flour and a bit of toddy. Hoppers as well as any of the other dishes mentioned should be eaten with your fingers and coupled with curries or sambols. Sweatmeats, tropical fruit and colonial food such as love cake or lamprais all contribute to create a vibrant and colorful cuisine distinctly Sri Lankan in all its tastes and shapes.
